Alice Chapman, Partner at McNeely Pigott & Fox
Greater Nashville Area

Alice Chapman joined MP&F in 1995 as a staff associate and became a partner in 2011, and is the only person ever to rise from an entry-level position to an equity member of the firm. Along the way, she has worked for an array of clients at the local, regional and national levels, leading award-winning campaigns and coordinating winning strategies for several public affairs initiatives.

Alice's specialties include grassroots campaigns, media relations and event planning. Her current clients include the TriStar Health System, the Consumer Healthcare Products Association and Tennesseans for Alternatives to the Death Penalty.

She most recently led MP&F's successful, multiyear grassroots campaign in support of wine sales in Tennessee's retail food stores on behalf of the Red White and Food coalition. The campaign resulted in the passage of local referendums in 78 municipalities and a historic change to the state law that previously limited wine sales to retail liquor stores.

Alice is actively involved in the Nashville community. She is the current board president of Communities In Schools of Tennessee and is a longtime member and former board member of the women's networking organization CABLE. Her accolades include CABLE's Civic Outreach Award (2006) and the Nashville Area Chamber of Commerce's Nashville Emerging Leaders Award for Public Relations, Advertising and Marketing (2011). She is a graduate of the Young Leaders Council (Class 41) and a former board member of the Women's Political Collaborative of Tennessee and the literacy nonprofit Book'em.

A native of Brentwood, Tenn., Alice is a graduate of the University of Tennessee and holds a bachelor's degree in communications.

Rebecca Mosley Owner of Duo Public Relations

Greater Seattle Area

Deciding I needed more creative headroom and a crash course in business management, I left Edelman Seattle with my goldfish in tow in 2004 to start

Duo PR. Since then, my business partner, Amanda Foley, and I have grown Duo PR into one of the top consumer shops in the Northwest. We specialize in blending traditional, grassroots and social media relations for clients seeking to have a big impact in the consumer lifestyle space.

I have worked with clients big and small (holding a special soft spot for those with a true entrepreneurial spirit), spearheading digital game launches for Microsoft, major renovations and grand openings for Hyatt Hotels & Resorts, international product introductions for Cranium, business/investor relations for Clover Coffee (now owned by Starbucks), and pushing formerly obscure foodie trends into the national spotlight for SousVide Supreme. Additional details on both me and Duo can be found at www.duopr.com.

Specialties: product branding and launch campaigns, national consumer PR, event management, social media + grassroots outreach, message development, crisis Communications
